

Christopher Hutson Jr Bio

Christopher Hutson Jr, affectionally called “Little Chris,” was the first born of three boys. Little Chris showed his little brothers how to be leaders and to be respectful of all living creatures. He loved his family and looked forward to spring and summer vacations on the beach. Little Chris also loved playing basketball with his brothers, playing video games and, most importantly, spending time with his family. Little Chris graduated a semester early from high school, got a job with his mom working as a customer service representative and was enrolled at Longview Community College with plans to graduate and become a computer technician. Chris's life was tragically ended by an enraged driver just two weeks after he celebrated his 19th birthday. Just four months before his untimely death, Chris registered as an organ donor, which allowed him to save the lives of seven others.